

Learn to write your own Agroecology Stories of Change

Do you have a good story about achieving zero hunger through agroecology? We can help you to write it.

4 X half-day Sessions: 21 June, 22 June 23 June & 28 June 9am to 12.30pm GMT

Join us for a free Story Writing Class on Zoom

Presented by the FAO Family Farming & Agroecology Community of Practice (CoP) and the Barefoot Guide Connection.

You will learn to write real-life stories which explore how agroecology helps the achievement of food security and nutrition.

PARTICIPANTS SHOULD ATTEND ALL FOUR CLASSES.

The classes will be from 9am to 12.30pm GMT.

SESSION ONE - 21 JUNE - A series of creative exercises to help you write a first draft of your story. SESSION TWO - 22 JUNE - In peer groups you will get valuable feedback on your 1st draft, using a powerful listening approach (head, heart and feet), adding new angles and depth to incorporate into your second draft. SESSION THREE - 23 JUNE - Peer feedback on your second draft will be focused on the Action Learning Cycle to draw out interesting reflections and learning to incorporate into the third draft. Elements from the Writing Guide are emphasized to support your next draft. SESSION FOUR - 28 JUNE - You will bring your third draft for a last round of feedback and get tips for polishing it up for the final draft.

Your facilitators

Doug Reeler and Beulah Tertiens-Reeler have facilitated Barefoot Guide Writeshops and coaching and editing support for writers for the past ten years.

What previous participants have said

"During the writeshop I experienced my story coming alive and communicating directly to my audience. The direct and honest feedback from my peers helped the story to get even more on purpose." "Such a simple process, yet so profound. Absolutely loved it. I feel like the next Jane Austen." "This course has stretched and deepened how I write."
